

Dr. Abdul Razakjr Bin Omar

Board Member

Appointed on 9 January 2023

Current Occupation:

Cardiologist

Mount Eliabeth Hospital, Singapore

Dr. Abdul Razakjr Bin Omar is a cardiologist at Mount Elizabeth Hospital, Singapore.

He was a former consultant cardiologist and clinical director, cardiac electrophysiology and pacing at the National University Heart Centre, Singapore. He later joined a Raffles Hospital as its consultant cardiologist. He was made managing partner and later deputy medical director there.

Dr. Abdul Razakjr graduated from the National University of Singapore (NUS) and obtained his master's there. He was awarded the Health Manpower Development Plan award to do cardiology fellowship at the University of Toronto, Toronto General Hospital, University Health Network, Canada. He was conferred as a fellow of the Academy of Medicine and the American College of Cardiology.

He was an assistant professor at the Yong Loo Lin School of Medicine. He was also an adjunct associate professor at Lee Kong Chian/Imperial College London School of Medicine.

Dr. Abdul Razakjr has been invited as a lecturer and faculty for local and international cardiology meetings. He was also involved in scientific research and his works were published in peer-reviewed international journals. He was the specialty editor of the Singapore Medical Journal and honorary secretary of the Singapore Medical Association.

He was a board member of the National Kidney Foundation (NKF) and the previous chairman of the outreach committee at NKF.

He was also the inaugural member of the board of trustees for the Singapore Institute of Technology (SIT) and was a member of academic advisory committee of SIT.

Currently, he is a member of People's Association, Ang Mo Kio Community Club Management Committee. He also sits on the Singapore Medical Council's complaints panel. In 2013, Dr Abdul Razakjr was conferred the Berita Harian, Singapore Press Holdings, Achiever of the Year award.